Good Morning!

This is your edition of the UF CVM Career Emails sent on the first and third Friday of every month. We highly suggest keeping a lookout and read through all the postings in each email since there are no repeat postings.

This Tip of the Email is a great resource - TheMuse. If you're ever stuck in a bind for quality career advice and are victim to the dark, strange depths of a google search, then check them out for your general job search questions.

Best,

Post-doctoral opportunity – Plum Island; USDA/APHIS

The position is for a 2-year Federal TERM position, with the opportunity to extend for an additional 2-years for a total of 4 years. The position starts at grade 11, but has potential for (up to) grade 13 promotion potential. The candidate should have completed, or be anticipating completion within the near term of their Ph.D. The project and salary are funded through the APHIS Science Fellows program to develop a system for rapid vaccine matching of Foot-and-Mouth disease virus, based on phage display profile data and leveraging various bioinformatics tools and artificial intelligence. Plum Island Animal Disease Center (PIADC) is a United States federal research facility dedicated to the study of animal diseases. It is part of the DHS Directorate for Science and Technology. The island is situated between New York and Connecticut, in Long Island Sound and is accessible by a government ferry from both states. The island has an active research and diagnostic mission focused on foreign animal diseases which is performed by scientists from USDA and DHS. The search is primarily focused on finding candidates that have strong Immunology/Vaccinology backgrounds, and (preferably) some experience with bioinformatics tools and/or Artificial Intelligence model development. This position will be within the Pathogen Discovery Team of the Foreign Animal Disease Diagnostic lab at Plum Island. While APHIS primarily serves a diagnostic role, the Pathogen Discovery Team is a group within the Diagnostic Services Section that focuses heavily on leveraging molecular methods, proteomics and companion bioinformatics in support of the FADDL mission. The candidate will join us in our newly renovated laboratory space, with extensive capability for sequencing, and proteomics work.
